With a Bachelor of Social Sciences (BSocSc) from Te Kura Toi Tangata Faculty of Education your students will gain the skills needed to understand and interpret educational trends in Aotearoa and around the world.

Everyone has a stake in the future of education. It’s a field of knowledge that can be applied within and beyond the classroom, which is why we provide our students with invaluable skills that are transferable across many areas. This degree will enable graduates to ensure that managing and promoting learning is not only the role of teachers, but parents, business people, salespeople, health professionals, and local and central government. Students will develop invaluable research skills in information gathering, analysis, reporting and decision making under the expert guidance of our world-renowned lecturers. Our teaching staff are highly experienced, meaning they can share both the theory and practical knowledge needed to succeed. Our diverse range of subjects gives students the opportunity to develop key strengths that can be used to lead innovation in community, health and business contexts. Topics covered include developmental processes, individual and group learning, pedagogical theory and many more.
